Why write by hand?

For a long time, writing was the only way to record language permanently. Today, various technical achievements put us into the position to express our thoughts in many different ways. Nevertheless - or perhaps exactly for this reason - the fascination that springs from handwritten manuscripts remains unabated up to the present day. It is one's own handwriting, one's own way of writing, which supplements words with depth, and enriches formulations with that special, personal touch.

This is why we would like to encourage you to find your matching writing instrument, for moments of joy while writing . . .

Uhr Pelikan Füllhalter-Spezialstern

Which writing instrument corresponds to my character?

As unique as handwritings are, so are the demands on the perfect writing instrument. Therefore, our collections also include - apart from fountain pens - rollerball pens, mechanical pencils and ball pens. As you can imagine, the visual impression of your personal handwriting depends to a large part on your writing instruments. In particular the nib size of a fountain pen is an important detail in this case. The nib gives handwriting a personal character and makes it individual and unique. Pelikan offers several nib sizes, so that everyone gets the chance to choose the size which matches them best: extra fine (EF), fine (F), medium (M) or broad (B). When choosing a broader nib, the nib will glide smoother across the paper. Try the different nib sizes in order to find the right one for your unique writing style.

Make A Wish Nib & guided tours

A nib especially made according to individual specifications has been a long standing wish of many collectors of high-end writing instruments and fans of Pelikan. On top of that, they would love to get a peep behind the scenes and to see in person how premium writing instruments are being produced. We are happy that we can now fulfill this wish! Since February 2014, the production of Pelikan opens its doors on one chosen day every month. You can book your individual appointments via the Internet. The Make A Wish Nib Package includes a consultation and the purchase of a nib especially ground according to your specifications. You can also find every detail about this special offer on our website: www.pelikan.com/nib

Pelikan logo: Development

The roots of the company Pelikan go back to the year 1838, when chemist Carl Hornemann founded a small production company producing ink and water colors, close to Hanover, Germany. In 1871, he sold the company to his production manager Günther Wagner, who not only gave his name to the company but also added the Pelikan image from his family's coat of arms to make his inks easily recognizable. He registered Pelikan as a trade mark in 1878 and thus made it one of the oldest brands in German history. The company grew and expanded with further products in ink, glue, and water colors. In 1929, after Pelikan had purchased the patent for the differentiated piston mechanism, the first Pelikan fountain pen was born. In the following decades, the company established its international reputation as a manufacturer of high-quality fountain pens.

Today, the fountain pens of Pelikan are classified into three different categories: Individually numbered fountain pens belong to the category LIMITED, fountain pens with gold nibs belong to the category PREMIUM, and fountain pens with polished stainless steel nibs are categorized as ELEGANCE writing instruments.

Rare Beauty

Why are Limited Editions so special? Because they are only produced once, and every fountain pen celebrates a specific theme. Moreover, every writing instrument is numbered individually and precious materials are used in splendor, matched by extraordinary packaging.

Our Limited Editions have two themes. The series "Seven Wonders of the World" started in 2004 followed by the "Achievements of Civilization" in 2007.

Some Limited Editions are not part of a series but are dedicated to a specific topic, like the model Silver Screen which celebrates the magic of Hollywood.

TOLEDO®

Toledo® - Precious artwork in Spanish style

The art of working with Damascus steel goes back thousands of years. It means that steel or iron objects are decorated by engraving a pattern into the surface. Next, a thin sheet of gold is placed over the pattern and is then embossed deep into the material. This technique was perfected in the famous Spanish town Toledo.

In the year 1931, Pelikan adopted this technique for the Toledo model with so much success that the design has remained virtually unchanged throughout the years. Today the decorative sleeve is made of one piece in Sterling Silver. It is treated carefully in various different steps until the motive is covered with a layer of gold. Every Toledo® fountain pen is a unique piece made in Germany. This is because the tiny engravings in the motif are made by hand, making each Pelikan feather come alive.

Due to the high amount of work, a maximum of 200 pieces can be created per month. If you own a Toledo® fountain pen, you own a piece of art and a small piece of history.

Ductus®

Ductus® – The goal is clear

This modern Pelikan collection represents clear lines, hence the name Ductus®, which is of Latin origin and translates as guidance or leadership. This series was developed for straightforward people with a unique style and fits with its flexible filling mechanism (large cartridge or converter) to the modern life-style. Due to the barrel made of brass, this writing series has a very nice weight. The shiny surface is lacquered multiple times.

Souverän®

Souverän® – A true classic

In the year 1929, Pelikan was the first company in the world to introduce the differentiated piston mechanism.

This technique causes the spindle inside the fountain pen to turn quicker than the end piece of the barrel, with the help of two different threads. Throughout the years, this fountain pen series was realized in many different variations, and though it developed in design and technical details over time, the basic mechanism still remains the same today.

In 1950, the model 400 was launched. With its green-striped sleeve, it has become a world-wide symbol for the brand of Pelikan. In the eighties, the series was baptized Souverän®. The Souverän® is available in many different colours.

Souverän®

• Souverän® – A true classic

The foreign minister of the Weimar Republic, Gustav Stresemann (1879- 1929), was honored with the Nobel Prize for Peace in 1926 for his reconciliatory work between the nations after World War I.

Besides his extraordinary political career, Stresemann also became famous for the creation of a new kind of suit that was still sufficiently formal for official presentations and yet comfortable enough for his work at the office. Stresemann liked to wear suits with thin stripes, and, as life sometimes goes, a legend developed . . .

and suddenly, people called the striped fountain pens from Pelikan -- that were just then starting their global tour of success around the world -- by the name of „Stresemann“. Both the suits and the pens still carry that name to this day.

To officially acknowledge and honor this legend, Pelikan has named the latest addition to the collection, the Souverän® with elegant stripes in anthracite, the „Stresemann“ . . .

Souverän® – A true classic

To offer a choice for every taste, you can choose the black models of the Souverän® range with either silver or gold applications.

The silver version of all Souverän® models has a gold nib which is completely rhodinized to give it a silver sheen. The clip and the rings are plated with palladium.

The gold version is equipped with the beautiful bi-color gold nib. Both have the intricate Pelikan embossing known all over the world.

Souverän®

Souverän® – A true classic

The production of the striped sleeve is work-intensive. Adhering to a special Pelikan recipe, the raw material cotton is processed through many different steps until it is shaped into a striped sheet. It is then formed into the right shape, cut and sanded with a diamond. Next, the characteristic double clips at the back of the barrel and on the cap are integrated into the material. This is done with the highest precision in order to obtain a virtually seamless transition between the materials. The writing instrument is then polished to a high sheen before the slightly springy clip with its famous, stylized Pelikan is mounted.

If you love classics, you own a Souverän® writing instrument. The Souverän® in red is equipped with a 14 carat gold nib.

A classical shape combined with an unusual color . . . you may never be wrong with black, but if, for once, you want to stand out in the crowd just a little bit, than this is the perfect alternative: The Souverän® 400 in pearly white, combined with a shimmering tortoiseshell sleeve made of cellulose acetate. Make a statement.

The clip and the rings of all the golden Souverän® series are plated with 24 carat gold. This model has a 14 carat gold nib with rhodium trimming.

If you're looking for the classic writing instrument par excellence, stop right here. The fountain pen Classic black has a timeless design with its barrel and cap in polished black. It is made of high-quality resin.
